

The propped act that you want to implement would weaken several state laws already in place. Rather than try to regulate this you should encourage the states to implement their own laws. The law as it stands in Indiana is much tougher than yours, and would result in our receiving many more telemarketer calls.